Net income is excess of total revenue compared with total expenditure. A company typically is defined and treated as a separate entity because owners, creditors, investors and other interested parties must assess its performance and potential separately from other entities and its owners. An accounting entity is the organization for which financial data must be collected. Investors buy all or part of an enterprise and hope to get part of what the company earns and/or sells the company in the future at a higher price than they paid. The equation for the economic account is Revenues - Expenses = Net income (or Net loss if the amount is negative). Financial reports are used both by internal groups and external parties. External groups include owners, investors, creditors, government agencies, other stakeholders, and the general public. A current asset is a good that will be used or transformed into money within a year; inventory is always considered a current assetHow long does it take to produce and sell the inventory. If a company does not pay its creditors, the law can give creditors creditors 2. The typical accounting entities are a company, a church, a government unity, a university and other non -profit organizations such as a hospital and a welfare organization.
